Development of Small-Scale fisheries in the Bay of Bengal
Madras, India, February 1982

PART A: INSTITUTIONS/PROGRAMMES

PREFACE

As part of its work in the planning of activities for the development of fishing families in the Bay of Bengal region, the Bay of Bengal Programme (BOBP) attempted to gather information on organisation/programmes concerned with women and rural development with particular reference to women in fishing communities. This document is an outcome of that effort. It does not claim to be a complete or comprehensive listing of information sources on the subject. It is an information document and has not been cleared by the FAO or by BOBP-member governments.

There are two sets of information in the document. Part A lists organisations and programmes concerned with women and development. Part B lists the publications on the subject. An asterisk against an entry denotes its availability in the BOBP library.

The Bay of Bengal Programme seeks to develop and demonstrate appropriate technologies and methodologies in several areas of small-scale fisheries - such as fishing craft, fishing gear, fish handling and utilisation, coastal aquaculture. Its goals are to improve the conditions of small-scale fisherfolk and the supply of fish from the small-scale sector in five countries, that border the Bay of Bengal - Bangladesh, India, Malaysia, Sri Lanka and Thailand. Besides it aims at regular and systematized information exchange in small-scale fisheries in the region. Information services publications are part of the information exchange activity.

The Programme is funded by the Swedish International development Authority and executed by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.
